STATION PAPER NO. 39, JULY 1956
LAKE STATES FOREST EXPERIMENT STATION
M. B. DICKERMAN, DIRECTOR
U. S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE - FOREST SERVICE

FOREWORD

One of the responsibilities of research organizations is to keep others informed as to the status of present work, plans for the future, and research findings. These responsibilities are accomplished in part by the Lake States Forest Experiment Station through correspondence, personal contact, group meetings, and field trips in experimental areas. Our chief means, though, of disseminating research findings is through publication.

This Station Paper lists the publications of the Lake States Forest Experiment Station since it was established in 1923. A study of the titles over the past 33 years and their dates of publication gives a fair indication of the advance in knowledge of forestry practices in the territory served by the Station: Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and North Dakota.

Although this list is limited to papers written by, or in collaboration with, Lake States personnel, many of the studies reported on were conducted in cooperation with others: forestry schools, state conservation departments, private industry, and federal agencies.

Originally the compilation of publications through 1951 was made by Helen A. Woodworth and published as Station Paper 15. The material in the following pages was assembled by Lucille P. Olsen, editor. She has broadened the classification scheme to include the newer areas of research and has added publications issued since 1951.

ABOUT THE LISTS

Copies of most of the publications listed in this bibliography can be found in forestry school libraries or in periodicals. An asterisk (*) preceding the title of a publication indicates that copies are still available for distribution. They can be obtained by writing to the Lake States Forest Experiment Station, St. Paul Campus, University of Minnesota, St. Paul 1, Minnesota.^{1/}

This publication list includes:

1. A classified list arranged by subject matter, by author within subject matter, and under each author by date. All publications are shown except brief Technical Notes, the material for which has usually been included in later, more comprehensive reports. Each item was placed in the category to which it seemed most closely related, and appears only once. A few cross-reference notes were appended at the end of some of the categories to guide the reader.
2. A list of Technical Notes arranged in the same manner as the above. These are 1- or 2-page processed reports, generally on a phase of a comprehensive project.
3. A list of Station Papers, which contain reports of research findings on studies of considerable scope.
4. A list of Miscellaneous Reports. These publications differ from Station Papers in that they are of more restricted interest or are based largely on compilation of results from other sources.

^{1/} The Station is maintained by the Forest Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with the University of Minnesota.

5. A list of the Aspen Reports published during 1947-51. This series, a cooperative effort among a number of agencies, brought together what was then known about aspen.
6. An Author Index noting the pages on which reports by each author (Lake States personnel only) are to be found.
